

Chiara D'Angelo

Chiara D'Angelo was born on March 11th 1988 in Popoli, a town in province of Pescara in Italy.

After graduating in Biology at "Carlo Bo" University of Urbino in 2012, she serves at Laboratory of Immunology and Molecular Pathology of "G. d'Annunzio" University of Chieti-Pescara.

Dr. D'Angelo has gathered publications, especially about neurodegenerative diseases, and among which there are some published as main author.

She has also attended several conferences, among which we could mention three held in Florence, Genoa and Rome, all about the relation between LcS and immune function in subjects affected by HIV.

She currently works under the leadership of Prof. Macella Reale, who declares with pleasure that Chiara has proven to be exceptional in human and working respect, and that she is a highly reliable individual, confident in commitment to strong ethic values leading her career into a new bright future.
